ROCKAWAY'S FARCE COMEDY

Witnesses "Guyed" at Sheriff Norton's Police Investigation.

Against Sergt. Walsh.

(Special to The Evening World.)
ROCKAWAY BEACH, Aug. 9.—The investigation by Sheriff Norton of the charges against the local police department appears so far to be of a very farcical nature.

The proceedings yesterday were held in County Treasurer Bessler's office at with spectators, who were continually talking, and frequently calling out to the men on the stand: "Have a drink, Pop," and similar remarks,

John Wainwright, Chsirman of the Business Men's Protective Association, testified that his committee had complained to Capt. Allen and Sergt, Waish of the existence of gambling games on the beach, and that the Captain did nothing to stop them until Sheriff Norton was appealed to. Then the games were stopped.

The next witness was ex-Policeman shappard. The farce-comedy began with him. To all the questions asked by Counsellor Mott, of Downing, Mott & Counsellor Mott, of Downing, Mott & Co., he made answers that were frequently entirely irreverent.

Shappard swore that while he was a policeman he was told by Sergt. Waish to keep an eye out for gambling and disorderly houses, as "there would be a dollar in it" for him. He told Waish of several gambling houses that were being run and the Sergeant's answer was, he declared, "Don't talk too much."

The evidence, so far, seems to directly implicate Sergt. Walsh, but Capt. Allen will probably have to take the blame on his own shoulders.

Mrs. Luckmeyer feared that her husband would shoot them all if she did not obey his command to open the door. She therefore unfastened it and told her husband to come in. He did so. The sight of his wife seemed to infuriate him, for he rushed at her and said: "Kate, i am going to kill you." Then he fired at her point blank.

Drink and rage made him unsteady and the bullet passed harmlessly over her head and struck the wait. Luckmeyer then shoved the pistol into his mouth, pulled the trigger and fired. He fell dead. Whether he supposed he had killed his wife, or whether he took his own life in a sudden fit of remorse, can only be a matter of conjecture.

The noise of the shooting aroused the neighbors and help was soon at hand. The children were found crying and Mrs. Luckmeyer was found bending over the dead body of her husband.

near where Lee's circus was stationed, a fight took place between several of the whites and negroes.

A boy named Harris was cautioned by one of the players to keep off the grounds, and when attempts were made to eject him. he picked up a broken bottle and threw it at Frank Ryan, cutting his hand badly. The latter chased and nearly succeeded in catching Harris, when a negro named Griffin interposed. He was knocked down by Peter Ryan for threatening the latter's brother. Griffin turned upon Ryan with a razor, but the latter had a baseball bat and knocked Griffin down twice.

A free fight followed, Griffin got up and ran a considerable distance before the was knocked down a third time. The last blow produced a fracture of the skull, and this morning he is said to be in a critical condition.

One of the negro attaches of the circus ran out during the progress of the fight, and drawing a revolver, threatened to shoot, but before he had an opportunity of doing so the crowd jumped upon him and beat him severely. He managed to escape from them and hid all night in the long meadow grass, a mile below here, and rejoined the circus at Fort Lee this morning.
